State Review Panel	New Content	97816268932184	Student	369	Evaluate Risk of Mutual Funds	New Content Added	"Evaluate Risk of Mutual Funds Mutual funds can be an effective addition to any investment portfolio. Without the burden of selecting individual stocks or bonds, mutual funds make investing in a diversified portfolio attainable. However, mutual funds are not without risk. Like other investment tools, mutual funds do not guarantee the original amount invested. Therefore, it is important to evaluate risk of mutual funds to ensure you select the right investment option for your long-term goals. To evaluate risk of mutual funds, investors examine some common areas, including the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The fund's performance history • The fund's management team • The fund's turnover rate, or how often it buys and sells investments"
State Review Panel	New Content	9781626893221	Student	Chapter 15 Test Your Knowledge	Question 1	New Question Added	"Imagine you are moving out on your own for the first time. Publisher	Editorial Change	9781610035668	Teacher	xxii	Making Meaning Teacher's Manual	ALIGNMENT WITH THE COMMON CORE STATE STANDARDS In its pedagogy and approach to instruction, the Making Meaning program aligns with the fundamental goals of the Common Core State Standards (CCSS), which are to develop students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. More specifically, the program aligns with the CCSS for reading and language in these ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> •The lessons provide students with strategies they can use to read and comprehend both literary and informational texts. The students hear, read, and discuss various types of literature—including stories, poems, plays, and novels—and informational texts—including narrative nonfiction texts, expository books and articles, and functional texts. •In literary texts, the students identify key ideas and details and analyze and discuss narrative text structure, including elements such as plot, character, problem or conflict, and theme. They learn to cite evidence from a text to support their thinking. •In informational texts, the students discuss key details and main ideas, identify reasons and evidence that support main ideas, and explore authors' purposes and points of view. They also analyze text features and organization. •Excerpts from read-aloud texts provided in the Student Response Books give the students opportunities to apply the strategies they are learning in a close reading of complex texts. •A unit at grades K–5 focuses on building a body of knowledge about a topic—the animal world—with particular focuses on animal young, animal habitats, and animal senses. The program's focus on conversations about texts, along with its teaching of social skills such as speaking clearly, listening to others, and asking questions about others' thinking, also brings Making Meaning into alignment with the CCSS for speaking and listening. In addition, the writing standards are addressed through Writing About Reading activities, which give the students opportunities to compare texts and express opinions about their reading. For a correlation of the skills taught in the Making Meaning program with the Common Core State Standards, visit Center for the Collaborative Classroom's website (collaborativeclassroom.org/ccss).	Alignment with Standards The Making Meaning program develops students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. Publisher	Editorial Change	9781610035699	Teacher	xxii	Making Meaning Teacher's Manual	ALIGNMENT WITH THE COMMON CORE STATE STANDARDS In its pedagogy and approach to instruction, the Making Meaning program aligns with the fundamental goals of the Common Core State Standards (CCSS), which are to develop students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. More specifically, the program aligns with the CCSS for reading and language in these ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> •The lessons provide students with strategies they can use to read and comprehend both literary and informational texts. The students hear, read, and discuss various types of literature—including stories, poems, plays, and novels—and informational texts—including narrative nonfiction texts, expository books and articles, and functional texts. •In literary texts, the students identify key ideas and details and analyze and discuss narrative text structure, including elements such as plot, character, problem or conflict, and theme. They learn to cite evidence from a text to support their thinking. •In informational texts, the students discuss key details and main ideas, identify reasons and evidence that support main ideas, and explore authors' purposes and points of view. They also analyze text features and organization. •Excerpts from read-aloud texts provided in the Student Response Books give the students opportunities to apply the strategies they are learning in a close reading of complex texts. •A unit at grades K–5 focuses on building a body of knowledge about a topic—the animal world—with particular focuses on animal young, animal habitats, and animal senses. The program's focus on conversations about texts, along with its teaching of social skills such as speaking clearly, listening to others, and asking questions about others' thinking, also brings Making Meaning into alignment with the CCSS for speaking and listening. In addition, the writing standards are addressed through Writing About Reading activities, which give the students opportunities to compare texts and express opinions about their reading. For a correlation of the skills taught in the Making Meaning program with the Common Core State Standards, visit Center for the Collaborative Classroom's website (collaborativeclassroom.org/ccss).	Alignment with Standards The Making Meaning program develops students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. It aligns with reading, writing, and listening and speaking standards. For more about how the program aligns to specific state standards, see the CCC Learning Hub (ccclearninghub.org).

Point out that notes are most helpful when they are brief and written in the writer's own words, rather than copied exactly from the source. Explain that if a writer copies the exact words or ideas from a source in her notes, she might accidentally copy those words and ideas into her own report. Tell the students that when a writer uses someone else's exact words and ideas in her own writing without giving the original writer credit it is called plagiarism. Explain that plagiarism is stealing someone else's work and calling it your own and that plagiarism can result in serious consequences for any writer, whether she is a student, a journalist, or a professional author.

Strategies for Spelling Think, Pattern, and Sight Words The Guided Spelling program provides students with strategies for spelling the different types of words they will need in their writing. . . .	Strategies for Morphemic Spelling In the Guided Spelling program, the students use the structure of words to help them spell. They learn the generalizations for adding suffixes (including inflectional endings), such as doubling the last consonant and dropping e. They spell common prefixes, base words, and suffixes. They learn to use related words as spellingclues; for example, colony is a clue for colonial. In grades 5 and 6, the students spell words with Greek and Latin roots such as uni, medic, soci, and gress. Strategies for Spelling Polysyllabic Words In grades 3–6 of the Guided Spelling program, the students learn strategies for spelling polysyllabic words. Polysyllabic words are difficult because the pronunciation of a word does not always reflect the written syllables. For example, we pronounce happy as /h.-p./, but the written syllables are hap- and -py. Polysyllabic words usually have at least one unaccented syllable with a vowel that is often difficult to spell, as in benefit and separate. In the Guided Spelling program, students spell base words by syllables and learn to focus on schwas and other unaccented vowels. The gain extensive experience with syllable boundaries and syllable types. In grades 4–6 they spell common syllables and word parts such as -ture, -ence, and -able. More specifically, the program aligns with the CCSS for reading and language in these ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> •The lessons provide students with strategies they can use to read and comprehend both literary and informational texts. The students hear, read, and discuss various types of literature—including stories, poems, plays, and novels—and informational texts—including narrative nonfiction texts, expository books and articles, and functional texts. •In literary texts, the students identify key ideas and details and analyze and discuss narrative text structure, including elements such as plot, character, problem or conflict, and theme. They learn to cite evidence from a text to support their thinking. •In informational texts, the students discuss key details and main ideas, identify reasons and evidence that support main ideas, and explore authors' purposes and points of view. They also analyze text features and organization. •Excerpts from read-aloud texts provided in the Student Response Books give the students opportunities to apply the strategies they are learning in a close reading of complex texts. •A unit at grades K–5 focuses on building a body of knowledge about a topic—the animal world—with particular focuses on animal young, animal habitats, and animal senses. The program's focus on conversations about texts, along with its teaching of social skills such as speaking clearly, listening to others, and asking questions about others' thinking, also brings Making Meaning into alignment with the CCSS for speaking and listening. Point out that notes are most helpful when they are paraphrased, brief and written in the writer's own words, rather than copied exactly from the source. Explain that if a writer copies the exact words or ideas from a source in her notes, she might accidentally copy those words and ideas into her own report. Tell the students that when a writer uses someone else's exact words and ideas in her own writing without giving the original writer credit it is called plagiarism. Explain that plagiarism is stealing someone else's work and calling it your own and that plagiarism can result in serious consequences for any writer, whether she is a student, a journalist, or a professional author.

Without recess, students also lose the opportunity to exercise and get rid of tension or boredom. Have the students discuss the meanings of the well-known proverbs that follow. You might write them where everyone can see them. A penny saved is a penny earned. Practice makes perfect. A picture is worth a thousand words. A watched pot never boils. Every cloud has a silver lining. Look before you leap.	Tell the students that you will read aloud a paragraph that contains an adage. Have the students think as you read about what the adage might mean. Read aloud the first paragraph below twice, slowly and clearly. After the first reading point out that "every cloud has a silver lining" is the proverb and then read the paragraph aloud again. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> I was upset last night because my dad had to work late and I didn't get to see him. This morning I found out that he gets today off so we can spend the entire day together. I guess every cloud has a silver lining. Ask: Q What do you think "every cloud has a silver lining" means? What makes you think that? Turn to your partner. Q When might you use the proverb "Every cloud has a silver lining"? What would you say? If necessary, tell the students that "Every cloud has a silver lining" means that there is something good in every situation, even if it seems unpleasant. Publisher	Editorial Change	9781598921250	Teacher	xviii	Guided Spelling Teacher's Manual	Making Meaning Vocabulary The Making Meaning® Vocabulary program is a supplement to Making Meaning. In this vocabulary program, students learn from four to six words each week (four words at grades K–2; six words at grades 3–6) and do activities with partners and as a class to develop their understanding of the meanings of the words. The words taught in the Making Meaning Vocabulary program are taken from the Making Meaning read-aloud texts.	The Vocabulary Teaching Guide provides 30 weeks of vocabulary instruction that build students' word knowledge, supplementing and supporting the reading comprehension lessons in the Making Meaning Teacher's Manual. The students learn high-utility words found in or relating to the read-aloud texts. The lessons combine direct instruction in word meanings with activities that require the students to think about the words and use them as they talk with their partners and the class.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781610035903	Teacher	xxii	Making Meaning Teacher's Manual, vol. 1	ALIGNMENT WITH THE COMMON CORE STATE STANDARDS In its pedagogy and approach to instruction, the Making Meaning program aligns with the fundamental goals of the Common Core State Standards (CCSS), which are to develop students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. More specifically, the program aligns with the CCSS for reading and language in these ways: •The lessons provide students with strategies they can use to read and comprehend both literary and informational texts. The students hear, read, and discuss various types of literature—including stories, poems, plays, and novels—and informational texts—including narrative nonfiction texts, expository books and articles, and functional texts. •In literary texts, the students identify key ideas and details and analyze and discuss narrative text structure, including elements such as plot, character, problem or conflict, and theme. They learn to cite evidence from a text to support their thinking. •In informational texts, the students discuss key details and main ideas, identify reasons and evidence that support main ideas, and explore authors' purposes and points of view. They also analyze text features and organization. •Excerpts from read-aloud texts provided in the Student Response Books give the students opportunities to apply the strategies they are learning in a close reading of complex texts. •A unit at grades K–5 focuses on building a body of knowledge about a topic—the animal world—with particular focuses on animal young, animal habitats, and animal senses. The program's focus on conversations about texts, along with its teaching of social skills such as speaking clearly, listening to others, and asking questions about others' thinking, also brings Making Meaning into alignment with the CCSS for speaking and listening. In addition, the writing standards are addressed through Writing About Reading activities, which give the students opportunities to compare texts and express opinions about their reading. For a correlation of the skills taught in the Making Meaning program with the Common Core State Standards, visit Center for the Collaborative Classroom's website (collaborativeclassroom.org/ccss).	Alignment with Standards The Making Meaning program develops students' ability to think critically, read closely and thoughtfully, work collaboratively, and express themselves clearly and confidently. It aligns with reading, writing, and listening and speaking standards. For more about how the program aligns to specific state standards, see the CCC Learning Hub (ccclearninghub.org).

Aunque la temperatura varía dependiendo del lugar, se puede decir que, de diciembre a marzo los días son fríos y las noches heladas. Es temporada de invierno y en algunos lugares cae nieve o se congelan los lagos y ríos. De abril a junio todo cambia, el frío se aleja y los días comienzan a calentarse. Llega la primavera y con ella la vida en el campo. Los árboles reverdecen, brotan retoños y flores de mil colores adornan todo el paisaje. Los animales tienen crías. Lluvias abundantes riegan las plantas de todas partes. De julio a septiembre el calor aumenta de día y de noche, al llegar la estación de verano. Hay que beber mucha agua y evitar exponerse al sol intensamente, para evitar una deshidratación, esto es, que nuestro cuerpo pierda agua por el excesivo calor y nos pueda causar problemas de salud. Por eso, hay que tomar mucha agua. Al final de septiembre llega el otoño y la temperatura baja. Los días se nublan y el viento se encarga de tirar las hojas de los árboles. Las hojas de algunos árboles cambian de color embelleciendo el paisaje, hasta que los árboles pierden por completo sus hojas como señal de que el frío ha vuelto. Así, el ciclo de las estaciones vuelve a comenzar.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485175	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485175	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485175	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485175	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485182	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485199	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485199	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485199	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning. This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485199	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.

Although the writer mentions science, she does not actually support her claim with evidence. She just states it as a fact.	Change to: The writer uses sweeping generalizations, "we all have smart phones" and "social media is everywhere and here to stay" to explain why we "stay in touch with friends by taking selfies." This use of generalizations reveals a flaw in the writer's logic: it may sound as if she provides a logical explanation for why we use selfies to stay in touch, but that explanation is fallacious. Her assertion is illogical.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9780544973251	Teacher	390	Bottom: Learning Mindset	Revise for clarity: Grit The Wright Brothers: How They Invented the Airplane is a lengthy and detailed text. Tell students that their mind is like a muscle that needs exercise. Even when the reading takes work, it builds a strong mind. This makes the next reading task easier.	Change to: Grit As they read the excerpt, encourage students to write notes in their text about how the Wright Brothers exhibited grit, or perseverance, in their quest to fly. Remind students that sticking with a book, a class, or another activity even when it is difficult or challenging will help them reach their goals. Grit means thinking hard, solving problems, and putting in the effort that it very often takes to succeed.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9780544973251	Teacher	476	Side: Language Conventions	Revise for clarity: Including quoted lines of dialogue allows the reader to hear conversations that reveal a lot about the conflicts in the plot in three short comments. First, it is confirmed that the boatman has feelings for the daughter. Conflicts that are revealed are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There is competition for the affections of the daughter. • The daughter is considered beautiful, and the boatman is not considered handsome. The gentleman calls him "plain." • The boatman and the daughter are from different classes and will probably not even be allowed to meet. • Expectations and roles are very different for men and women, and yet it is likely neither will have a choice. Now we begin to wonder what will happen or what the boatman and daughter will do to get past these obstacles. 	Change to: Point out that the sentence preceding the quoted lines of dialogue identify the speaker in each paragraph. (Answer: The dialogue signals that the plot will be about the boatman's feelings for the mandarin's daughter. It also reveals that the boatman and the daughter are from different classes, which could be an obstacle.)

Publisher	Editorial Change	9780544973251	Teacher	192B	Summaries	Replace English summary for accuracy.	Change to: Violet Jessop served as a stewardess about the Titanic when it hit an iceberg in the North Atlantic. Jessop describes the confusion as the crew tries to get passengers into the lifeboats. Some lifeboats are lowered into the ocean with very few people; others are lowered with too many. As Jessop is boarding a lifeboat, a crew member tosses a baby to her. As the lifeboat rows away, Jessop comforts the baby and counts the decks of the ship. Each time she looks back, she realizes that one fewer deck is above the water. Finally, the Titanic sinks into the ocean, taking many people with her.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476395	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9780544973268	Teacher	333	Bottom, ENGLISH LEARNER SUPPORT, items	Revise items to more closely align with Student Edition content: 1. Put students into pairs and have them ask each other yes-or-no questions. Ask: Should humans explore space? Is it dangerous for humans to be in space? 2. Point out to students the rhetorical questions that begin the article. Have them read the questions aloud to each other and discuss what they mean. 3. Pair students and have them test each other with simple questions about the article topic. For instance, they can ask: Who wrote this article? (Claudia Alarcon) What is it about? (space exploration).	Change to: 1. Have students read aloud the three questions that open the text. Then, ask them to explain why the author begins with these questions. (To remind us that there is much we don't know) 2. Point out that the author, in paragraph 2, writes that today's motivation for exploring space differs from that of the 1960s. Ask students to discuss and explain the difference. (Students should note that scientists from across the world now collaborate, rather than compete.) 3. Have students work together to identify the author's claim. Ask: What does the author want you to believe? (We should explore space for the sake of knowledge, resources, and the possibility of finding a new home.)

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476401	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Change to: The author uses a compare-and-contrast order when comparing humans to mammals. She writes, "By contrast, humans, under the protection of their families, take many years to develop and grow into adulthood." She uses this pattern to emphasize the difference between adolescence in humans and mammals. The author also uses a cause-and-effect order when describing the adolescent brain. She writes, "We get more and more myelin, which speeds up the communication between nerve cells, as we go through adolescence,'. . . But the price we pay is that, as myelin is laid down, flexibility diminishes." She uses this pattern to show that changes in adolescents' bodies come with both good and bad effects.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328476418	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485564	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485571	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Groups section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, the learning platform did not provide teachers with the capability to group students.	The platform now provides teachers with an easy way to use data to group students for differentiation and to support small group instruction in the classroom. Teachers can navigate to a single assessment report for completed online assessments and select the new Recommend Groups button to create groups based on student performance. Or teachers can also manually group students or assign resources to groups.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Plans section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Previously, teachers did not have the capability to create custom lesson plans.	Teachers and administrators now have an easy way to organize resources and create plans. A new navigational tab titled Plans is available for teachers, allowing them gather resources that they would like to utilize to teach in one central location. By selecting the Plans tab, teachers can create and access existing plans. Resources can be added to plans from the Discover tab, where a new Add to Plan button is available for all resources.

Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	The platform now offers options for exporting assessment results.	Teachers can export student assessment data as a .CSV file from the Data & Reports section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning . This allows teachers to share assessment data with Administrators, save data from year-to-year, or move data into another system.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have an easier way to navigate to single assessment reports.	A new way for teachers to more easily and quickly navigate to view a single assessment report is available. Now, teachers can navigate to the Assignments section, navigate to the Assignment Detail page for the single assessment, and click the View Report button.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Discover section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers have additional filter options for finding and discovering content.	Teachers can filter search results for resources by the Table of Contents for the selected grade or program they are viewing in Discover . This is a great way to refine search results to view resources from specific units/modules or lessons/topics.
Publisher	Editorial Change	9781328485588	Teacher	N/A	Assignments section of Ed: Your Friend in Learning platform, available in top navigation	Teachers now have a consistent way to provide feedback to students on any assignment.	Teachers can now give text-based feedback to students across assignment types to provide a greater understanding of their performance and tangible direction on growth as learners. Feedback is available for completed Online Assessments, eBook assignments, and Performance Tasks.

An argumentative essay is a form of persuasive writing where the writer makes a claim about a topic and then provides evidence—facts, details, examples, and quotations—to convince readers to accept and agree with the writer’s claim. In order to provide convincing supporting evidence for an argumentative essay, the writer must often do outside research as well as cite the sources of the evidence that are presented in the essay.

Point to can not and read the word. Then point to can't and read the word. What two letters are missing? (n and o) What takes the place of the missing letters? Yes, an apostrophe. Let's read the other two words. Model writing the two words, can and not , and reading the words; then erase the letter o , replace it with an apostrophe, and read the word can't . Have students repeat the process with the words she will, she'll; they will, they'll; you are, you're; is not, isn't ."	"Write or display these words and their contractions: can not (can't); he is (he's); and I am (I'm) . Point to can not and read the words. Then point to can't and read the word. What two letters are missing? (n and o) What takes the place of the missing letters? Yes, an apostrophe. Let's read the other words. First model writing the two words he and is and reading the words. Erase the letter i , replace it with an apostrophe, and read the word he's . Have students highlight information in paragraphs 36–39 that helps them make a prediction about why Isatou is picking up the bags. See student page for possible response. Tell students that they should also use other text features, such as the illustration on the page, and the characteristics of genre to make their predictions. As they read the following pages, they can adjust or confirm their predictions. Ask: What do you think Isatou is going to do with the bags? (Possible Response: She is collecting so many bags because she is going to turn garbage into something useful.)
