When writing essays in response to progressively demanding writing tasks and reading texts of increasing complexity, students achieving Meets Grade Level Performance can

- Write essays that contain a clear thesis statement, use an appropriate organizing structure, sufficiently develop ideas with specific details and examples, choose words that reflect an understanding of the purpose, and demonstrate an adequate command of written conventions
- Use a variety of sentence structures
- Revise drafts to strengthen the introductory and concluding paragraphs, add information that enhances the supporting details, strengthen transitions within and between paragraphs, improve the effectiveness of sentences, and recognize appropriate style and word choice
- Analyze how the author’s use of diction and figurative language supports meaning
- Analyze literary texts by recognizing universal themes and the ways in which literary devices contribute to the development of linear and non-linear plots and complex, believable characters
- Demonstrate an understanding of informational texts by summarizing the text by determining which ideas are most important
- Make reasonable inferences about literary and informational texts, supporting those inferences with accurate, relevant textual evidence
When writing essays in response to progressively demanding writing tasks and reading texts of increasing complexity,* students achieving Approaches Grade Level Performance can

- Write basic essays that establish a weak or unclear thesis statement, use organizational strategies that are somewhat suited to the task, minimally develop ideas with details and examples that are not always appropriate to the purpose, and demonstrate a limited command of written conventions
- Use simple and compound sentence structures
- Demonstrate developing skills in revision and editing
- Edit drafts to correct errors in grammar, sentence structure, capitalization, punctuation, and spelling
- Distinguish between the denotative and connotative meanings of words using context, structural analyses, and reference materials
- Recognize figurative language and how it supports meaning
- Analyze literary texts by recognizing universal themes, literary devices, and plot elements
- Demonstrate an understanding of informational texts by recognizing the controlling idea or argument and identifying the author’s purpose
- Recognize the logical connections and thematic links between texts representing similar or different genres

When writing essays in response to progressively demanding writing tasks and reading texts of increasing complexity,* students achieving Did Not Meet Grade Level Performance can

- Write limited essays that are only marginally suited to the task and minimally developed, with a partial command of conventions
- Demonstrate minimal control of sentence structures
- Demonstrate limited skills in revision and editing
- Determine the denotative meaning of words using context and reference materials
- Demonstrate a limited understanding of literary and informational texts and recognize a summary
- Make simple inferences about literary and informational texts

*The rigor of the expository writing task increases from grade 7 to English I in that the prompt is more demanding in English I, specifically with regard to the cognitive complexity of the stimulus (the synopsis or quotation students use in developing the essay) and the sophistication of the topic. In addition, the text complexity of the reading selections increases from grade 8 to English I. Texts can become increasingly complex for a variety of reasons: (1) vocabulary/use of language may be more varied and challenging because it is nonliteral/figurative, abstract, or academic/technical; (2) sentence structures may be more varied, dense, and sophisticated; (3) the author’s use of literary elements/devices, rhetorical strategies, organizational patterns, and text features may be more nuanced or sophisticated; (4) the topic/content may be less familiar or more cognitively demanding; and (5) relationships among ideas may be less explicit and require more interpretation, reasoning, and inferential thinking to understand the subtlety, nuances, and depth of ideas.
